Mary “Dubbie” Buckler | Executive Director/National Secretary | American Legion Auxiliary National Headquarters

Questions occasionally arise about expanding membership eligibility in the American Legion Auxiliary.

Membership eligibility in The American Legion family of organizations is established by federal law and further restricted by regulatory provisions in the Internal Revenue Service which has granted tax exempt status to the Legion, Auxiliary, and Sons based on the Legion's federal charter enacted by the U.S. Congress. There is no legal discretion for either the Legion or the Auxiliary to change membership eligibility criteria.

Membership eligibility in The American Legion family of organizations is established by law; there is no discretion for either the Legion or the Auxiliary to change membership eligibility criteria.

Membership eligibility for The American Legion family of organizations is based upon the provisions of The American Legion's federal charter as approved by the United State Congress. The Internal Revenue Service defines the tax exempt classification of The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary based upon the membership eligibility criteria legislated by Congress and each organization's Articles of Incorporation.

The American Legion Auxiliary was founded 95 years ago as a women's service organization. The American Legion Auxiliary was incorporated as an all-female membership organization. The American Legion Auxiliary national Articles of Incorporation specify the Auxiliary' membership is limited to females who are directly related to a US veteran who served during a time of war as defined by Congress. In keeping with the criteria established by Congress, membership eligibility for the American Legion Auxiliary is defined in the American Legion Auxiliary National Constitution & Bylaws as the sisters, grandmothers, mothers, wives, daughters, and direct descendants of U.S. veterans who served during the periods of war and conflict as defined and designated by the United States Congress.

The American Legion recently concluded its Study Committee on Membership Eligibility and determined that no additional classifications can be made to membership eligibility without an act of Congress. Increasing categories of eligibility beyond that specified by the United States Congress and the Auxiliary's Articles of Incorporation would be contrary to what is lawfully permitted and would jeopardize the federal tax exempt status of both organizations.

Both The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary abide by the legally established criteria for membership eligibility. Because of the limitations as described above, the Legion and ALA cannot consider any proposals to expand membership eligibility criteria. We ask that you share this information within your departments and inform them that any resolutions submitted to the National organization to expand membership eligibility criteria will be deemed by the National Judge Advocate to be invalid; and therefore they cannot and will not be considered.
